Art Unit: 3724

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 124-144 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bartlett et al. '510, who shows a table saw with most of the recited limitations including 1st and 2nd stationary rails (34,36), 1st and 2nd movable rails (58,60) and a fence (146) that is movable beyond the end of the stationary rails as seen in figure 8.

Bartlett lacks a movable rail alignment system. Examiner takes Official Notice that it is well known for tables having fences to employ a pulley and cable alignment system utilizing four corner pulleys and two cables attached to opposing ends of movable rails. Examples of such are the patents to Waters '006 and Jean '294. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have provided Bartlett with such a pulley and cable alignment system, as is well known and taught by Waters and Jean, in order to keep the movable rails moving together and thus keep the fence straight.

In regards to at least claims 126, 127 and 140, Bartlett's movable rails (58,60) are inside the stationary rails, as opposed to being "disposed over" the stationary rails. However, having the movable rail be inside or outside the stationary rail is a simple reversal of parts that would be obvious to one of ordinary skill. Furthermore, Examiner takes Official Notice that it is well known for the movable rail to be disposed over the stationary rail. An example of this is shown by Bartlett himself, where movable rail 90 slide over fixable rail 60. Another example is the patent to Haas et al.'687. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have further modified Bartlett by having the movable rail be disposed over the stationary rail, as is well known and taught by Hass and Bartlett himself, the this is a simple reversal of parts that not alter the operation of the machine.

3. Applicant's arguments have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant has overcome the rejections under 35 USC 102.

Applicant argues that Bartlett does not teach the positioning of the fence beyond the end of the table. It is not understood why Applicant made this argument. Please see Bartlett's figure 8.

Applicant should note that his fence has a wider range of motion than does Bartlett's, but this feature is not currently claimed.

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

§ 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
